Math Practice: Fourth graders are required to have memorized basic addition and subtraction facts to twenty, and multiplication facts to twelve. Students are strongly encouraged to use IXL throughout the summer to maintain and strengthen their math skills. You can find your child's account at <https://www.ixl.com/signin/lawrencemartyr>

Username: student's first initial and last name* (ie: epope)@lawrencemartyr

Password: 2028

Mission Reports/Projects: Students are asked to visit any one of the California Missions before January in preparation for the mission project and report. Your child may choose any one of the 21 California missions for this assignment. If you happen to visit one over the summer, make sure to gather as much information as possible.

Summer Reading: For me, the ability to choose a book is key to a positive summer reading experience. Select a book from the list below that is near your child's Accelerated Reader (AR) level. If nothing on this list works for your child, the links below will lead you to lists of high-quality, age-appropriate books. Don't know your child's AR level? Look at the levels in parentheses on the list below. Knowing your child's appetite for reading, choose a higher level if your child consumes books or a lower level if your child hasn't yet caught the reading bug. Summer reading should be challenging but not discouragingly so.

- Tales of a Fourth Grade Nothing by Judy Blume (AR Level 3.3)
- Fourth Grade Rats by Jerry Spinelli (2.6)
- Fourth Grade Fairy by Eileen Cook (3.7)
- Fourth Grade Fuss by Johanna Hurwitz (5.0)
- The Fabled Fourth Graders of Aesop Elementary School by Candace Fleming (3.9)

Book Report: Once your child is done reading, the attached book report must be completed and submitted on the first day of school. They will take a summer reading AR test when school resumes.

Note: The "F/NF" in the book cover section refers to fiction or nonfiction.

Note to Parents: In addition to required summer reading, your child might enjoy comic books, newspapers, or magazines. These materials are typically written at a surprisingly high reading level but should be monitored for content.

May you have a safe and relaxing summer.

I look forward to working with all of you in the fall. Email me if you have any questions at epope@stlmschool.org -EMP

 If there is another child at St. Lawrence with the same first initial and last name as your child, try putting the number 2 or 28 after the username. For example: epope28@lawrencemartyr
